

Interim Report

for the six month period ended 30 September 2025

We enter the second half of the year with greater confidence than at this time last year, while acknowledging that although economic instability affecting much of the labour market has eased, it has yet to show a sustained turnaround.

Jason Cherrington, Group CEO

CEO's Insights

At our Annual Shareholder Meeting in August this year I highlighted the unwavering determination of our people to endure prolonged and frustrating economic conditions.

On reflection I should have also noted their ability to ensure the efficient and effective execution of our plans, enabling the Group to weather an overall decline in revenues whilst retaining talent and ensuring strong financial disciplines remain firmly in place.

I am especially pleased to see Executive Search business Hobson Leavy continue to deliver strong year-on-year top and bottom-line growth.

This execution has resulted in a return to profit for our white-collar segment in H1 FY26, stability in our blue-collar segment despite a more challenging environment for our construction and manufacturing clients, and improved cash generation from overall operating activities across the Group.

It forms the foundation for a stronger end to the FY26 financial year, whilst also looking to more favourable trading conditions in the FY27 financial year.

As we publish this report, we do so just days after the release of the unemployment rate for the September 2025 quarter edging up to 5.3% as widely predicted. Time will tell if the labour market is officially turning the corner this quarter, though as we know, unemployment is a lagging indicator. Business confidence has been lumpy in the first half of our financial year, with only some sectors on their way to recovery. From our insights at the coalface, overall optimism for 2026 is certainly rising amongst many of our clients.

Accordant Group revenue for the last 6 months declined by 8% year-on-year, marking a notable improvement compared to the 21% decrease recorded in H1 FY25. This signals an easing of hiring freezes across the country, with some signs of recovery becoming evident, in addition to the positive indicators noted earlier this year around greater tender activity within our blue-collar business and a significant increase in senior level appointments.

I am especially pleased to see Executive Search business Hobson Leavy continue to deliver strong year-on-year top and bottom-line growth, and we predict this will remain thanks to strong capability and their reputation in seeking and appointing the best executive-level talent across a broad range of industries. The addition of two new partners into the business also ensures we have strong scalable plans in place now and into the future.

Generalist recruiter Madison also grew its revenue over the last six months – a combination of volume projects and a ramp-up of their professional services capability contributing well to that result. This growth is a testament to the team's agility and ability to scale in response to client needs. Clients are indicating a stronger intent to hire permanent staff next year. Our Temporary and Contractor offerings provide an appropriate stop gap solution where needed in the meantime.

JacksonStone & Partners, still facing the ongoing challenges of government entities' restriction on spending, have started to see an uplift in Permanent hiring over the last three months – and most notably in the September period. Contractor appointments also continue to trend up this year and are now well ahead of the same period last year. Both highlight a steady strengthening of pipeline. For JacksonStone and indeed many of our other businesses, there is increased potential from the new “economic benefit to New Zealand test” introduced to the government procurement rules. The new test strengthens our position as a New Zealand business relative to many foreign-owned competitors.

Our commitment to Health & Safety sets us apart in the industry, and reflects our robust systems of care and the diligence of our people who are keeping safety and wellbeing at the forefront.

For Absolute IT, although pockets of growth were evident, the IT recruitment market has had another challenging start to the year and has remained softer in comparison to other sectors. Significant IT projects across many clients remain on hold and are somewhat linked to business confidence and the investment needed to reactivate them. Despite operating on a significantly leaner cost base this year, the team remains focused and well positioned for future growth, anticipating increased demand driven by the signalled technology investments planned for next year. There has been increased positivity from the sector more recently, technology being a key pillar of the government’s strategy for economic growth, though the timing of any significant increase in tech sector hiring remains an unknown.

Whilst revenue from the blue-collar segment was marginally down on the same period last year, the AWF team are delivering on more assignments and have a greater number of employees on our books, confirming the decline is due to shorter assignment lengths rather than reduced demand. Having most recently secured a number of key tenders across the market this year, AWF is well placed to deliver on a better second half of the year and are hopeful of a more positive peak period of trading that begins imminently.

Net cash provided by our operating activities in H1 FY26 improved compared to the same period last year, signalling even greater efficiency across the Group. This enabled a reported reduction in borrowings of $3 million compared to FY25, reflecting our continued focus on financial discipline and cautious capital deployment.

The Board have resolved to not pay a dividend as we continue to focus on profitability and debt reduction in the immediate term.

As overviewed in the Annual Report 2025, our commitment to Health & Safety sets us apart in the industry. We recently had our annual ACC AEP (accredited employer program) assessment under the new Assessment Tool, which replaced the prior Audit Standards. We are pleased to have met all the revised criteria, an achievement which is testament to AWF’s capability as an Accredited Employer. This reflects our robust systems of care and the diligence of our people who are keeping safety and wellbeing at the forefront.

We enter the second half of the year with greater confidence than at this time last year, while acknowledging that although economic instability affecting much of the labour market has eased, it has yet to show a sustained turnaround. The focus on efficiencies across the entire Group remains acute. Every decision and strategy scrutinised over the changeable and challenging market conditions of the past couple of years has positioned us strongly. As the economy improves alongside rising consumer and business confidence, as well as from more certainty with the government's action plans, Accordant is poised to deliver.

We also continue to look further than the tried and trusted in order to innovate for short- and medium-term returns. As mentioned at our recent ASM in August, our workstream enabling proven AI capability alongside our existing tech stack is progressing well.

AI Assistants have now been rolled out across all our business units, and further work is underway to refine our existing automations and chatbot functionality. Transparent, ethical, and responsible use of AI is at the core of our approach. This investment in technology is a key part of our strategy for ongoing productivity enhancements and outstanding client experience.

As a locally domiciled organisation focused on the New Zealand market, we have a deep understanding of the challenges our clients and candidates have had to face. We have had to battle in the same trench. While the market remains inconsistent in the near term, we remain committed to supporting New Zealand's staffing needs and are well-positioned and appropriately resourced to seize growth as demand lifts.

Our national footprint, sector diversity, and ability to deliver across both permanent and contingent staffing solutions continues to give us a unique advantage in delivering with speed and scale for our nuanced local needs.

Our businesses have demonstrated resilience and adaptability. The same can be said of our people and we look forward to seeing Accordant emerge even stronger as the economic recovery gains momentum.

SEGMENT INFORMATION

The Chief Operating Decision Maker (CODM) is the Group Chief Executive.

The Group has two defined Reporting Segments:

- Blue Collar – AWF operates branches under the brand names AWF (throughout New Zealand) and Select (Dunedin) which provide contingent labour hire associated with infrastructure, logistics, manufacturing, technical and construction. The Work Collective (TWC) provides opportunities for those who face barriers to employment.
- White Collar – White Collar contingent temporary employees and contractors together with Permanent Recruitment and Executive Search associated with professional and managerial positions including technology and digital business sectors.

Within the White-Collar Reporting Segment are four (4) operating segments:

- Madison Recruitment
- Absolute IT
- JacksonStone & Partners
- Hobson Leavy

The 'White Collar' segment operates branches under the brand names Madison Recruitment, Madison Force, Absolute IT, JacksonStone & Partners and Hobson Leavy in major cities throughout New Zealand. These brands derive their revenues from staffing services across temporary, contract, permanent and executive search, principally in the commerce sector.

These operating segments have been aggregated on the basis that they have similar economic characteristics; the nature of services offered, the processes and customers are substantially the same, and strategic decisions are made in conformity over all four brands.

The Corporate office function reported as 'Central administration costs and director fees' provides governance, compliance, audit, public accountability and Group funding. The Corporate office also provides shared services including centrally held leases, accounting, information technology, human resources, and marketing expertise, however these are recovered to the operating segments via a Management Fee which is included in the reporting segment profit. Revenue derived is incidental to the Group activities. The Corporate office function is not an operating segment and is not part of one of the reportable segments.

These segments have been determined on the basis, of the trading brands that operate under each; that discrete financial information is available for these segments; and that their operating results are regularly reviewed by the Group CODM.

All revenues from external customers, and non current assets other than financial instruments, deferred tax assets, post employment benefit assets, and rights arising under insurance contracts are attributed to the Group's country of domicile.
